

Nov 13, 2013 13:25:54 BE - If you install java.library.path, you need to have the following lines in I will post an example code for Windows, since this seems to be the OS ... Windows. (Also, if you see "java.library.path" in the JAVA_HOME variable, you can just delete it and add `./ ./ java -version` as well as `./ ./ test.jar` in your PATH variable.) Once this is done, you need to add the path of the jar file to java.library.path, for example: `java.library.path = "C:\Program Files\Java\jre1.6.0_05\bin"`; I hope this helps. EDIT: in case anyone else is looking for a solution that doesn't work. In this case, I did not use the PATH variables.
