You will travel through a vast new world, including a brand-new adventure and three new story paths, as you battle against the forces of evil in an epic quest to conquer a world transformed by magic into a realm of wonder. NEW: Hero's Tower: Strategically expand your castle during your quest to become the greatest wizard of all time. Unlock and upgrade exclusive items and power-ups for your hero and explore a new hub to collect all new cards for your deck. NEW: Demon Hunter: As your hero ventures deeper into the Dark Altar, a demonic army spawns throughout the land! Utilize your "Demon Hunter" to swarm the enemy and defeat their commanders before they can organize an assault on your castle. NEW: Continuum: Gain extra card value when you play with the third or fourth color in your hand (colors 3/4). You may gain multiple continuum points with the same color in your hand and gain multiple extra points when playing with colors 3/4. NEW: Planes: A great new mechanic that will allow you to play cards from the plane in the next turn. This mechanic can be played in your turn or in your Hero's turn. NEW: Arcane Power. Draw a card when you strike a creature with a attack. NEW: Fleet of War: Spell/Special cards that increase the attack or health of the hero. NEW: Crusader: A new hero class that rewards you for your hero when it's a 3-for-1. New cards can be found in stash that create the effects as they were played the turn they were found, providing another way to play unique cards that are left in play. NEW: Ancient Armour: A new class of cards that can be played in your Hero's turn and help your hero regenerate health. Every time your hero takes a hit, it recovers a stat point and that stat regenerates over time. This new class of cards includes "Stalwart Defender" and "Golden Cover" cards. NEW: Celestial Light: Each turn, remove a card from your hand and add that card to the bottom of your deck. This new class of Unlockable Feature: Unique character-specific skit Do you remember Wen Zhengwei, the King of Taiping Heavenly Kingdom? All Chinese kids probably did. Wen Zhengwei was a Zuo Zhuan (左传), a fictional advisor to Emperor Guangxu. His book is considered to be one of the important historical sources about the Taiping Rebellion. This is a re-creation of his book. Historical Description: *A well-known story in China, his story is very famous. It all begins in the year 1864, in a peaceful city near the Yangtze River, Zhenjiang City. In fact, Zhenjiang is considered to be the birth place of the Beijing Opera. However, things started to go wrong with this city not long ago. In the first half of the 1840s, a rebellion broke out, it was then referred to as the Xianglin Restoration. In April 1846, thousands of anti-Qing rebels poured into the city, taking the city hostage. Not long after, the Taiping Gengshen Kingdom (◆ c9d1549cdd

What's new:

On a dark and stormy night, American screams reverberated through the hazy, smoky streets of Havana. As the familiar sounds of gunfire and wind-whipped flames wafted outside his window, Kamall, an only child of carefully structured middle-class European immigrants torn away from a life of European prosperity, finds himself at the epicenter of chaos that is his country. His eyes follow the courtyard of his parents' apartment building, reminiscing back to his childhood summers, and there, in the center, he glimpses his parents, his siblings and his beloved nanny, dancing among the dump trucks, parasols and horses at the edge of the building's footpath. His country was turning into a den of thieves and murderers. The words of his father echoed in the back of his mind, "He who is strong has value, but he who is weak has none." With these brutal words in mind, Kamall felt that the family had to make a perilous decision to survive. On the night of June 17, 1958, Kamall's family gathered to decide their course of action. But years of obeying his father's weak leadership had taken its toll on his parents' health. Their restlessness turned to anger, particularly in his mother, and Kamall witnessed every tense moment while dancing in the courtyard. After midnight, his mother announced that they had made a decision: they would leave Cuba, and cross into Miami on foot. Kamall was confused as to what he was supposed to do. Having rushed into his bedroom that evening so as not to have to witness his parents' decision, Kamall was shocked to learn that they had plans to bring him along, to ensure his safety. The night when the family abandoned everything they loved was the longest and most frightful night of Kamall's life. When next the sun rose, they found themselves in Caimanera, a small town where they hoped to cross into the Cuban-American border. On their first night, as they worked to ready themselves for what was to come, he played hide and seek with his American and Cuban friends who were now trying to protect the family, and were busy exploring their new freedom in the humid Cuban night. Towards noon, after some time, he ventured from his hiding place and returned to the group. The sound of rumblings brought him back to reality. His father had just announced that their

Download the Super Retro JRPG Music Pack today and see how its retro inspiration can create new life in your next RPG. Share this: Like this: Related Fun game, good theme. A lot of the new tracks are from artists that I don't normally use so I like them. I'm kinda stuck on the BGM because it's a bit too repetitive, and sometimes when I try to edit, it doesn't work. So I end up using the music either directly without editing or using vanilla music from the Super Retro Pack without the background music looping. Not many people know this but you are free to use the song 'our home is called catacombs' in your own game. Chris, nope, I actually can't find it anywhere (YouTube/SoundCloud) and I tried to get in touch with the artist but he just sent me generic "I don't have the permission to do this" answers.
