The device is a dual sim dual standby that supports both 4G / 3G / 2G networks. It is an Android smartphone with a resolution of 800 X 480 pixels and dimensions of 160.5 x 81.4 x 9.5 mm. HTC Hero is a mid-range Android smartphone made by HTC, unveiled in October 2009 at the Frankfurt Motor Show. The HTC Hero is a successor of the HTC Touch Pro 2, and was HTC's last device to use a slide out QWERTY keyboard. The phone was also announced at the time as the first HTC smartphone to get Google Android 2.1 (Eclair), making it the second smartphone after HTC's high-end flagship device, the HTC Legend, to do so. HTC promised to make Android 2.1 available for its line of smartphones before the end of 2009, however the release of the HTC Hero did not materialize. Innovating on the HTC Dream concept, the HTC Hero features an effective keyboard, an enhanced QWERTY keyboard, and 3.2 megapixel camera. It also supports Motorola's popular feature of "motorized keyboard actuation". Its physical keys are contoured and shaped similar to the keyboard on a laptop. Apart from its distinctive look, the HTC Hero adopts many software and hardware features that distinguish it from other smartphones, such as a phone dialer, two-way radio, and the GPS function.. It has two antennas that can boost its reception. Its main camera has an auto-focus function. The phone is also dust proof and has a light sensor to adjust its brightness. It also supports Flash Lite 2.0 which is backward compatible with most of the Flash applications available on the internet, similar to its predecessor the HTC Touch Pro 2, which is also compatible with Flash Lite. This phone is 7.5mm thick and weighs 112 grams. It has a typical ¥230 to ¥340 US retail price and is about seven times more expensive than a regular mobile phone. Female patients should be treated with anticoagulants when they are at risk of experiencing a thromboembolic event. Coronary artery disease causes a small but significant proportion of the mortality and morbidity in women. Epidemiological studies have shown that women who experience cardiac events have fewer atherosclerotic risk factors than the male counterparts and the majority of these are under the control of the individual. Arrhythmias in the context of chronic conditions such as coronary artery disease, hypertension, cardiomyopathies, valvular diseases, inflammatory and malignant disease should be treated on the basis of the severity and the likelihood of recurrence of the arrhythmia. Anticoagulation should be initiated at a lower level of prothrombin time and activated partial thromboplastin time than in men. Adequate anticoagulation can be achieved in the vast majority of patients with warfarin, but there is still controversy concerning the need and the appropriate duration for the initial dosage. Aspirin remains an alternative option, especially in patients with a low risk of bleeding. Recently, statins have been shown to be of significant benefit in men and, because of their antiarrhythmic properties, are likely to be of benefit in women.Q: Fastest way to copy a file in Android I am currently using this method to copy a file (initialized outside of the main function). public static
