The group of imperial provinces revolted against the Austro-Hungarian Empire, the capital Vienna fell and the Czech Empire was established. There was a struggle for the leadership of the new countries on the Eastern Front between Austria and Russia, where Germany, Finland and Sweden took sides. Eventually the struggle came to an end and the new Slavic Empires were incorporated into the German Empire. This group of countries tried to form an alliance with the Soviet Union, but within a few years they broke up because of internal conflicts. Russia became a new rival and a new coalition fought against both Russia and Germany. One of the more uneventful wars was the American civil war in the United States. Germany remained in the Allied side, but Britain and France declared war on Germany. From January 1918 the alliance between Britain and France and the US threatened the German empire. The German empire was forced to make peace. Initially, the northern German states, that was bordering on England, accepted the Treaty of Versailles and became part of the British Empire. The treaty divided the German empire into two halves, the western and the eastern half. This division left the German empire with a difficult task to annex the German mainland. The Polish people fought for independence with the western half of Germany against the British Empire. Eventually, the Treaty of Versailles signed with the German empire in 1920 was the most important agreement, that eventually led to the Second World War. The German empire divided between the two newly created states of Germany and the Soviet Union. At that time the Russian Empire was the biggest power in the world. The Soviet Union became a completely new rival for the German empire and the German people. The German Empire tried to fight against the communist revolution in the Soviet Union, but it was soon defeated by the Soviet Union. The Soviet Union took over the German communist party and led it to the one-party rule. The new German state turned into a communist state, but the German empire survived. In the Second World War, the German empire repelled the Nazi invasion. On the Eastern Front the German army defended their territory against the Soviet Union, all the way to the last German soldiers. This eventually led to the end of the war in Europe. The game begins with you standing in a newly founded nation in the year 1848. The political leader is Friedrich Wilhelm von Stein, an advisor of King Ludwig I. You will make the following decisions: The game starts with you as the ruler of a German province. Grimaldi WASHINGTON (Reuters) - Major U.S. banks may be forced to offer higher rates to consumers to compete against the much smaller number of companies offering credit cards with no annual fees, according to comments made by the head of the American Bankers Association to Congress on Tuesday. "I certainly share with you the concern about the spread of the use of these credit cards or cash advances or cash and other cashlike alternatives," ABA chief executive Michelle Michot Foss told the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee at her first hearing. "It's important to note that consumers benefit from the existence of these other forms of credit, but these forms of credit come at a price," she said. "And that price comes in the form of higher interest rates." ABA, which represents the biggest U.S. banks, stands to benefit as credit card interest rates rise. Under the proposed new interchange fee rules, banks would have to add a surcharge to any transactions that involve cards issued by competitors. Consumers would then be able to choose the lower rate offered by companies like Walmart Inc, which already provide competitive credit cards, or higher rates from traditional banks if they offer lower rates. Foss has previously raised concerns about competition in the industry. In January, she said the banks were "not going to sit idly by" while "large entrenched competitors who make enormous profits, whose customers love their products" made undue profits. The U.S. Federal Reserve has estimated that the new rules would reduce the average consumer's bill by $25 a year. Under current rules, the industry and the Fed are in regulatory limbo. The banks have urged the Fed to re-examine the rule, which would eliminate the last remaining annual fee for consumers, in order to forestall its effective elimination. The Senate Banking Committee, which oversees the Fed, is expected to re-examine the rule as part of a financial overhaul law passed in 2010.
