Q: How to reorder saved sheets in Excel? I have several sheets in my Excel file that are on top of each other. I would like to be able to manually change the order of the sheets. Normally I would just drag the sheet tabs from the top and have it auto-move to the right place. This is impossible due to a rule that I have to try and prevent duplicates. Any way to do this? A: You can sort the sheets (in Excel 2007 or 2010) by selecting them and then click on the icon at the top of the screen (first icon on the left). The reorder will be remembered. So, to order them in the order of creation of the file you can type in the Excel Command Line the : XLSX TO CDS That's all. A: Press Ctrl+R to see the Sort dialog. Type in the column header, or type the text of the column header. Then click OK. A: Use Ctrl+R to sort by most recently used. The other option is to sort by the sequence they were created in by opening the file again with a different filename. Then just save the new file with the same name. Fluid and vascular response in nephropathic cystinosis and acquired cystic kidney disease. We measured plasma renin activity, serum and urine aldosterone levels, and cystatin C levels in 35 patients with chronic kidney disease of different aetiologies:

10 patients with chronic glomerulonephritis and nephrotic syndrome (group I), 10 patients with chronic glomerulonephritis without albuminuria (group II), 10 patients with polycystic kidney disease (group III), and 5 patients with nephrotic or microalbuminuric kidney disease associated with type 2 diabetes (group IV). Asymptomatic patients with normal kidney function who were used as a control group (group V) included 16 men and 11 women with a mean age of 29 years (range 19-59 years). A significant positive correlation was found between the plasma renin activity and serum aldosterone levels and the cystatin C levels in patients with acquired cystic kidney disease (group III) and in control subjects (group V) (group III: $r = 0.586$, $p = 0.0012$; group V: $r = 0$).
