Roblox is an online game platform and game creation system designed for people between the ages of 4 and 18, developed by Roblox Corporation. Set in the Roblox Universe, which is based on the original concept of the ROBLOX platform, players create their own games using the graphical programming language Lua. Players may play the games they have created or other user-created games. To play, users download the Roblox Client, an Adobe AIR application that is installed on the client device. With the Roblox Client, users are able to navigate their games and customize their user interface (UI). Developed in Linux and Windows, Roblox games can be accessed from a range of platforms, including desktop, tablet, Android and mobile devices. The player can connect, share and play with up to five friends simultaneously. Roblox games can be played in both a single-player and multiplayer environment. Roblox was founded in January 2006 by David Baszucki and Erik Cassel. Initially conceived as a small project called ROBLOX to allow their younger cousins to create games, the original ROBLOX opened on January 19, 2006. About a month after the first game was released, the site had 3,000 games. Roblox Corporation officially registered the ROBLOX trademark in 2007, and launched a website for the company in the same year. Roblox opened the ROBLOX Studio in 2008, where players could create their own 3D games using the ROBLOX platform. In 2009, the ROBLOX Studio was renamed to Roblox, and the website also began to accept submissions of 3D games for publication on Roblox. At the 2010 Game Developers Conference in March, Roblox released the Roblox Beta, which let players with an invitation-only access see a prototype of the ROBLOX platform. With the release of the ROBLOX Developer Toolkit in 2011, Roblox became a platform that allowed users to create their own games for sale. Additionally, Roblox was making progress in gaming the markets, having caught on at the 2012 Global Toy Fair, where Roblox merchandised the ROBLOX North America toyline. Roblox Studios was also active in the gaming industry, having won an industry award in the 2010 Gamemaker Awards, for their in-development game Playground. A few days after the games Wreckerator and Break-out were
