Your stories should be coming out from your mouth, not pausing when you speak. This is where you take over from the game. Character Sheet Notes about the character sheet Your character is the ultimate detective, you have the skill to keep the world from falling apart and solve the most puzzling crime. Don't forget that "You must know your weapon", your weapon is your knowledge and your ability to carry out your task. You'll be able to see three relevant characteristics in the player description: Player's Role is the role you'll play in the game. Skills represent the ability of your character. Your character is able to perform a variety of actions and some may be not available. In most games you will have a set number of skills. Gameplay If you're familiar with hex maps, you should know how to move around in the game. You can move one tile at a time, choosing a direction and confirming the current tile. Your skill will be important to use wisely and you should plan for every eventuality. When you move, before the move you can ask the game what tile you're going to select from the available tiles. When you click the tile you will know what effect will be applied when you click on the tile. You'll have to make the right choice, otherwise the game will likely end up with an unplanned action. You will be able to use that tile again during your turn, or keep it for later. Skills Skills are the most important feature of the game. When you assign a skill to a tile, the
