President Donald Trump is doubling down on his unsubstantiated claim that former President Barack Obama ordered a wiretap of Trump Tower during the presidential campaign. "As proven in court, there was no 'tapping' of phones in Trump Tower just prior to the election," tweeted Trump on Wednesday morning. "Nothing found. This is McCarthyism!" But in March, Trump lawyer Jay Sekulow stated the opposite, telling CNN that "the president has not made any such representation." "I'm not aware of any such thing," Sekulow said on March 4. "We'll see what ultimately is on the Hill. And if there is something — if that happens, it will be reported." Sekulow has since walked back the attorney's comments, telling the New York Times in a statement, "I misspoke in a recent interview with the New York Times. As the President's personal attorney, and a long-time member of the president's legal team, I have
