Atlanta (Greater Atlanta) is a city in the U.S. state of Georgia, and the county seat of Fulton County. Atlanta is the second-largest city in the state, with a population of over 4.5 million. It is the eighth-most populous city in the country. Atlanta is part of the so-called East Coast Megalopolis, which includes the Washington, D.C. area. The city was incorporated on March 1, 1788, with William Clark named its first mayor. During the American Civil War the state capital at the time, Milledgeville, became a strategically important Confederate headquarters, with Confederate President Jefferson Davis making his headquarters at the Gordon Hotel on West Armory Street on the west side of the city. Atlanta received its current name at the time; the official Georgia State Records lists only the previous name. The city is famous for being the birthplace of the civil rights and anti-war movements. The movie Gone with the Wind was filmed at the Atlanta studio of Atlanta-based Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Atlanta has been growing rapidly in recent years, especially after the completion of the Beltline, a series of trails around the city and surrounding suburbs. Atlanta has been named the Most Livable City in the U.S. by U.S. News & World Report on four consecutive years, and Atlanta was named one of the most bicycle friendly cities in the United States by Bicycling Magazine in 2005. In 2008, the city was named the "Greenest City" in the U.S. by Sierra Club's "Eco-Innovation Awards. Atlanta has a six-month-long warm season, with daily high temperatures generally in the mid to upper 70s and lows in the low- to mid 40s. Atlanta's official recorded temperature is 54.6 °F (12 °C). The official average yearly precipitation is 16.25 inches (41 cm), while the average annual rainfall is 58.3 inches (147 cm). As of the Atlanta Area Climate recordkeeping began in 1870. The highest temperature was 92 °F (33 °C) in June, while the lowest was -9 °F (-23 °C) in January. Atlanta holds numerous annual festivals, including the Atlanta Film Festival, Atlanta Soul Food Festival, and Atlanta Homage to the Past's Halloween parade.
